A large staff, with a dove on the top, formerly thought to be all of gould, but upon triale found to be, the lower part wood within and silver gilt without, weighing in all 27 ounces, valued at 351. This seems to accord with the verge or staff of gilt wood, the ligneam virgam deauratam, of Sporley. One small staff with a fioure de luce on the topp, formerly thought to be all gould, but upon triale found to be iron within and silver gilt without, valued only at 21. 10s. This is the other of iron (alteram ferream), named by Sporley. One staff of black and white ivory, with a dove on the top with binding and foot of gold, valued at 4-l. 10s. , completes the number of five sceptres or rods given by Sporley, but he mentions particularly that two were for the...
