To prevent overcharges and difficulty: 1) Have it definitely understood that lodgings are taken for only one fortnight, or month (never longer than a month) abroad; that will obviate the necessity of giving a months notice in advance. In other words, give the advance notice when hiring, and renew it each month, before a witness, or better yet have the notice acknowledged on your receipt. 2) Get a written memorandum of the price of everything: lodging, service, light, heat, breakfast, etc. separately; or if you pay a lump sum have the items for which you pay specified. 3) Inspect the furniture etc. carefully and point out any damage which you see, lest it be charged for in the...
