In this manner from generation to generation the burden of real estate taxation is diffused among successive owners, each of whom bears only such increases in the tax rate as occur during his period of tenure. While real estate must be the basis of the system, a classified property tax can draw substantial revenues from personal property if it rightly classifies the objects to which it applies. Personal property has sometimes been considered to form a single class, and it has been proposed either to exempt it from all taxation or to tax it at a uniform rate, though not at the rate levied upon real estate. But this ignores the well-defined distinction between tangible and intangible personalty, a distinction which must be recognized by any reasonable scheme of classification. Intangible property is easiest of all to...
